Re: Review of strategic alternatives

Dear Karen,

Thank you for the conversations you and the shareholders have had with us this spring, and for the candor with which they described what they want for the company and for themselves. This letter sets out the terms on which Quillon Harbor Advisors LLC will act as financial advisor to Ingram, Bowers and Roth in a review of its strategic alternatives, with our work commencing on June 19, 2023.

What the review will cover

The question the shareholders have put to us is simple to state and harder to answer: what should the owners do with the company over the next several years? Our work is to examine the 6 strategic options we have discussed with them, running from continued ownership on the present footing through to a sale of the whole business, and to tell you for each what it is likely to be worth, what it would ask of the company and its people, and what could cause it to disappoint.

We will begin with the company as it stands, working through the historical financial statements with you and your finance staff and building the bridge from reported earnings to an adjusted figure that a buyer or a lender would recognize. From there we will value the business under its present ownership, set that value against what comparable companies trade for and what comparable businesses have sold for, and then measure each alternative against that standalone case, so that the shareholders are always comparing a choice with the course they would otherwise be on.

This is a review and not a sale process. We will not approach any prospective buyer, investor, or lender on the company's behalf without the shareholders' prior written approval, and where it helps to know how the market would receive a particular course, we will draw on our own conversations with acquirers and sponsors, describing the company by sector and size and never by name. Nothing in the review commits the shareholders to a transaction, and if they later decide to pursue one, that work would be the subject of a separate letter on its own terms.

I will lead the engagement myself and will answer for the recommendation we put in front of the shareholders. Jennifer Bruce, an Advisory Associate, will build the financial model and the bridge from management's figures to the adjusted ones; Sandra Norman, also an Advisory Associate, will run the information request and keep the record of what we have asked for, what has arrived, and what remains outstanding; and John Bauer, an Analyst, will prepare the comparable company and transaction analyses and our written status reports to you. We would like you to serve as our principal contact, and we will route every request for information through you so that your staff hear from us in one voice.

The schedule below sets out what you will receive from us and roughly when, counted from the commencement of the engagement. The later stages depend on how quickly information reaches us and on the shareholders' own calendar, and if either moves, we will tell you promptly how the schedule moves with it.

Deliverable	Timing from commencement	Prepared by
Information request and kickoff session with management	First two weeks	Sandra Norman, with Heather Delacruz
Diagnostic of historical results, including the bridge from reported to adjusted earnings	Weeks three through eight	Jennifer Bruce
Standalone financial model and valuation under present ownership	Weeks six through twelve	Jennifer Bruce and John Bauer
Comparable company and precedent transaction analyses	Weeks eight through twelve	John Bauer
Assessment of each alternative: likely value, conditions, and principal risks	Weeks twelve through twenty	Heather Delacruz, Jennifer Bruce and John Bauer
Written status report to you	Monthly throughout the engagement	John Bauer
Recommendation and presentation to the shareholders	Final month of the engagement	Heather Delacruz

Fees and payment

Our fee for the review is a fixed fee of $118,000, and it does not depend on the course the shareholders choose or on whether they choose any course at all. We will invoice it in equal monthly installments over the term, together with reasonable out-of-pocket expenses at cost, and we will ask your approval before incurring any expense out of the ordinary; invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt.

Term and termination

The engagement runs for approximately six months from commencement, or until we have presented our recommendation to the shareholders. Either the company or Quillon Harbor may end it at any time by written notice to the other, in which case fees accrued and expenses incurred to the date of notice remain payable, and the sections of this letter on confidentiality and liability continue to apply.

Confidentiality

We will hold everything the company provides to us in confidence, use it only for this engagement, and share it only within our team and with the company's own advisors as you direct. Our written work is prepared for the shareholders and management of the company and may not be passed to anyone outside it without our consent, which we will not unreasonably withhold.

Limitation of liability

We will rely on the information the company provides without verifying it independently, and our work is not an audit, a legal opinion, or tax advice. The company agrees to indemnify Quillon Harbor and its personnel against claims arising out of this engagement, except to the extent a court finally determines that a loss resulted from our gross negligence or willful misconduct, and our aggregate liability to the company shall not exceed the fees paid to us under this letter.

Governing law

This letter is governed by the laws of the state in which our principal office is located, without regard to its conflict-of-laws rules, and it is the entire agreement between us on this engagement. It may be changed only in a writing signed on behalf of both the company and Quillon Harbor.

If these terms reflect your understanding, please sign where indicated below and return a copy to me. Once we have it, Sandra Norman will send you the information request, and we will settle a time for the kickoff session with your management team.

Yours sincerely,
