DRAFT -- superseded by the final version; not for distribution

Lauren Heath
Chief Operating Officer
Castaneda, Adams and Davis

Dear Ms. Heath:

This letter confirms that Castaneda, Adams and Davis has engaged Ashcombe Advisory Partners to design and run an investor relations program over the coming months. It sets out the work we will do, the people who will do it, what it costs, and the terms we both agree to. If any part of it does not match the conversation we had, tell us before you sign rather than after. An investor relations program only works when the firm and the company are describing the same business to the market, and this letter is the first place we get to confirm that we are.

Scope and Approach

The engagement is an investor relations program: the ongoing work of explaining Castaneda, Adams and Davis to the shareholders, analysts, and prospective investors whose understanding of the company moves its standing in the market. We will settle the core messages that carry the company's story, prepare the material that supports each earnings and announcement cycle, and stay close through the moments when a number has to be explained or a decision made public. We are not there to run your investor relations in perpetuity; we are there to build the program, the language, and the discipline so that the story holds the same shape each time it is told.

Our approach is plain and we have used it for years. We begin by listening, to you and to the people inside Castaneda, Adams and Davis who own the numbers and the narrative, and to the outside audiences who already hold a view we may need to sharpen or correct. From there we agree a short set of core messages in writing, because a position that lives only in conversation drifts the moment three people repeat it. We then build the materials that carry those messages through the calendar ahead, and we would rather say less and have it hold than say more and spend the next quarter walking it back.

The Team

Michael Morris will lead the engagement day to day and is your point of contact for anything of substance. He carries our more sensitive accounts and is at his best in the weeks before an announcement, when a clear head is worth more than a clever line. Laura Bradley will draft much of the client-facing messaging; she matches her register to the audience without losing the point, and she is quick to flag the sentence that could be read the wrong way. Michelle Black will prepare the underlying material each message rests on, keeping what is confirmed cleanly apart from what is still open. I lead this firm and I read the work that leaves it. I will not sit on your calls week to week, but I am reachable directly, and if the program is not going the way you expected I would rather hear it from you early than read it later.

Fees and Payment

Our fee for this engagement is $47,000, fixed at the outset and quoted as a single figure rather than as a rate against hours. We work to a fixed fee because it keeps our attention on the outcome instead of the clock, and because you should be able to call us with a question without watching a meter run. The fee is billed in equal monthly installments across the term, the first on commencement. Reasonable out-of-pocket costs that you approve in advance, such as travel to meet your investors or the production of finished materials, are billed at cost and itemized on each invoice. Invoices are payable within thirty days of receipt.

Term and Termination

The engagement commences on July 7, 2018 and runs approximately nine months, which is the basis on which we have planned the program. Either of us may end it on thirty days' written notice. If you end it, you owe the installments that have fallen due as of that date and the approved costs incurred to it, and nothing further. If we end it, which we would do only if the work as agreed had become work we could not do honestly, we will refund any fee already paid for work not yet performed.

Confidentiality

Discretion is central to this kind of work. We will treat your internal information, your plans, and the fact and content of this engagement as confidential, and we will use anything you tell us about Castaneda, Adams and Davis that is not already public only to do the work you have retained us for, sharing it no further than the people on both sides who need it. Where a disclosure carries its own legal timing, we follow yours, and we will not release, hint at, or act on material information ahead of the company. We ask the same discretion of you regarding our methods and our materials.

Limitation of Liability

We will carry out this engagement with the care and skill customary in our profession. We do not control how an audience receives a message or how a market moves on a given day, and we do not warrant a particular share price, analyst rating, or outcome, because the parts that decide those are not ours to command. Our total liability under this engagement, on any theory, is limited to the fees actually paid to us for it, and neither of us is liable to the other for indirect or consequential loss. Nothing in this paragraph limits liability for fraud or willful misconduct, and nothing should.

Governing Law

This letter is the entire agreement between us on this engagement and replaces anything said or drafted before it. It is governed by the law of the state in which this firm keeps its principal office, and any dispute we cannot settle between ourselves goes to the courts sitting in that state, to whose jurisdiction we each consent. Any amendment takes effect only in writing signed by both of us.

Acceptance

If this letter reflects our agreement, please sign below and return one copy to me. Michael Morris will be in touch within the week to set the kickoff and to agree the first pieces of work with your team at Castaneda, Adams and Davis. We are glad you chose us for this program. It is good, winnable work, and we intend to earn the choice.

Very truly yours,
