Re: Engagement to Improve Sales Effectiveness

Dear Ms. Gallegos:

This letter confirms our appointment to work with Hughes Group on the performance of its sales organization, and sets out the terms on which we will do the work. It follows our conversations over the winter and the summary of your commercial results that your office sent afterward. What follows states the question we have agreed to answer, how we will answer it, who will do the work, and the commercial and legal terms of the engagement. Your signature on the final page returns this letter to us as our agreement between the two firms, and settles anything discussed before it.

What We Have Been Asked to Do

You have asked us to find where Hughes Group is leaving revenue on the table in the way it sells, and to tell you what to change. We hold ourselves to three questions and no more. Where does the sales effort actually go, measured against where the revenue and the open opportunity sit. Why do deals the company should win slip, stall, or close at a discount it did not need to give. And what in the sales model itself, the coverage, the process, and the incentives, is producing those outcomes. We will deliver a written set of recommendations, with the analysis behind each one attached, together with a plan for putting them in place that your own managers can run without us.

How We Will Work

We start from your own numbers. We take the bookings, the pipeline, and the win-loss records of the last several years and read the sales organization through them: productivity by representative, coverage by account and by segment, win rates by stage, and the discounting behind the revenue actually booked. We then interview your sales managers and a sample of the field, because the reasons a deal is lost rarely show up in a system and usually show up in a conversation. We measure what we find against how comparable sales forces are run, drawing on our own reference base. Where the data is thin we will say so and work around it; where our reading differs from the field's account of itself we will show you both, and the basis for our view. We do not rebuild your compensation plan or your systems inside this engagement. We tell you what they should be made to do, and that work can be scoped separately if you want it.

The Team

I am responsible for the engagement, and I review the analysis and the recommendations before either reaches you. Jason Torres leads the work and is your point of contact for its substance; the growth side of these questions is his, and he will be in front of you at the working sessions. Nicole Griffin manages the information requests and keeps the record of what has been asked for and what is still open on each side, so that nothing needed from your people is lost between us. Matthew Parrish handles the data and the desk research that sit under the analysis. We do not change the people on your engagement without telling you first.

Fees and Payment

Our fee for the work described above is a fixed sum of $30,000, covering the analysis, the recommendations, and the implementation plan that accompanies them. We invoice monthly for the share of the work completed in the prior month, payable within thirty days of the invoice date. Reasonable expenses, principally travel undertaken at your request, are billed at cost against receipts. We do not begin work outside this scope on assumption; if you ask for something this letter does not cover, we will quote it and wait for your written authorization before we start. Work begins on February 27, 2016, subject to your signature and to our receiving the commercial data and the introductions to your sales managers on which the first weeks depend.

Term and Termination

The appointment takes effect on the date of your signature below and runs until we have delivered the recommendations and the implementation plan and rendered our final invoice. Either party may end it on thirty days' written notice to the other. On termination you will pay us for the work performed and the expenses incurred to the effective date, and we will hand over our work as it then stands, with a written note of what is finished and what is not. Work delivered before the end of the engagement is partial, and we will mark it as such.

Confidentiality

We treat the information your company provides as confidential and use it only for this engagement. Inside our office, access is limited to the team named above and to those whose work requires it. We will not disclose your information, or the fact or the subject of this engagement, to anyone outside the firm without your written consent, except where a court or regulator with jurisdiction compels it, and in that event we will notify you first if we are permitted to. Our recommendations are prepared for your use in improving your commercial performance and are not to be relied on for another purpose without our written agreement. These obligations survive the end of the engagement.

Limitation of Liability

Our recommendations are addressed to Hughes Group for the purpose set out above, and are not to be relied upon by any lender, investor, or other third party without our prior written agreement. Our total liability arising out of the engagement, whether in contract or in tort, will not exceed the fee paid to us under it, save in the case of our own fraud or willful misconduct. Neither party will be liable to the other for indirect or consequential loss, including lost profit or lost opportunity, whether or not its possibility was made known. Our conclusions depend on the accuracy and completeness of the information you furnish; where that information proves materially wrong, the consequences of the error are not ours to bear, though we will tell you promptly if we come to doubt what we have been given.

Governing Law

This agreement is governed by the law of the state in which our principal office sits, without regard to its conflict-of-laws provisions. Before either party begins proceedings, we will try to resolve any dispute through discussion between senior people on both sides. This letter and its signature page together form the entire agreement between us on their subject, and may be amended only in writing signed by both parties.

If these terms match your understanding, please sign both copies where indicated, keep one for your file, and return the other to this office. If anything in them does not, call me and we will settle it before you sign. We are glad to be undertaking this work for Hughes Group, and we will be ready to begin as soon as the signed letter is back with us.

Very truly yours,

Julie Ramsey
